

Hello, and thank you for taking the time to read this brief comment concerning 17-108 “Restoring Internet Freedom”. I am concerned that undoing our current net neutrality laws will weaken the ability for the everyday citizen to access vital information the web currently provides us. Not only could it give a huge disadvantage to poor urban and rural citizens, but it is potentially extremely dangerous in certain situations such as losing the ability to Google the closest hospital because they did not pay for premium services. I understand that laws and regulations are always changing. I would fully support a change in the current regulations if it guarantees the same or better protections to the people. You, yourselves are employees of the people, not big business, and should stand by access for all, not just all that can afford it. Businesses like Comcast can and will find a way to remain highly profitable regardless of the regulations. This change will only hurt individuals. I will keep my final point short, -either do your jobs and respect the people, or hand in your resignation. Thank you.
